Advanced Rabbit Medicine and Surgery Webinar Series & 1-Day of Wetlab

October 15, 2022

Rutland House Referrals • Merseyside, UK

This 1-day course is designed to provide practical hands on experience for practitioners who are keen to develop their rabbit skills further.

The lectures are provided as recordings, and it is expected that these are worked through ahead of the wetlabs in order to provide a solid grounding in common clinical presentations in rabbits such as dental, respiratory and neurological conditions, including details on critical care, analgesia and anaesthesia – all of which are vitally important to get sick rabbits better quicker.

The following topics will be covered in lectures and case presentations recordings:

- Rabbit nutrition and husbandry
- Clinical assessment of rabbits
- Rabbit critical care
- Rabbit Anaesthesia
- Approach to rabbit gastrointestinal stasis
- Rabbit Respiratory disease
- Rabbit dentistry
- Rabbit Nervous Disease

The wetlab day consists of a series of practical cadaver sessions including airway management, aural surgery, neutering and dental techniques. These classes present a unique opportunity to develop skills which are otherwise rarely offered.

The 6-hour practical session will give delegates the opportunity to put theory into practice on cadaver specimens (at least 1 per delegate) and to ask questions all under the supervision of the course tutors. The following topics will be covered during the practical sessions:

- Rabbit intubation and airway management
- Rabbit Ear Surgery
- Rabbit neutering
- Rabbit dental techniques

The course fee includes lunch on site, coffee/tea breaks, extensive course notes and a certificate of attendance. Early course registration is recommended as there are only a limited number of places available.

SPEAKERS:

Neil Forbes BVetMed, DECZM(avian), FRCVS

Molly Varga BVetMed, DZooMed, MRCVS
